Moscow, August 21.—The plenary session of the Moscow Soviet today unanimously passed a resolution thanking the Delegation to London for their efforts with regard to the Anglo-Soviet Agreement and instructing the Government in future negotiations never to agree to terms which place a new burden of taxation on the workers of Soviet Russia.

M. Rakovsky in a speech contended that the Agreement did not infringe the laws of the Soviet with regard to nationalisation and annulment of debts while Soviet Russia had only to pay claims which were recognised as advantageous to itself or for which social justice demanded compensation. He predicted ratification of the Treaty because otherwise property owners and bond holders would get nothing.

M. Chicherin, who was greeted by the whole audience rising and shouting "Long live our Red diplomacy," described the Treaty as the basis of future relations with other foreign countries. He said that it would help to consolidate the international situation of the Soviet whilst affirming the principles of the Bolshevik revolution.

Miss Susan Lawrence, M.P., received an ovation when she greeted the Moscow Soviet on behalf of British Labor she said that the Agreement was welcomed enthusiastically and urged the

Canton Merchants' Corps Dissatisfied But Afraid To Tackle Sun Just Now

General Strike Will Probably Be Attempted As Result Of Government's Decision In Arms Dispute; Troops Are Mobilized

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Aug. 20.—Leaders of the Merchants' Volunteer Corps, while by no means satisfied with the decision of Dr. Sun Yat-sen relative to the controversy over seizure by his soldiers of the huge shipment of arms and ammunition imported for the corps, are believed to be unwilling to take any drastic steps against the Canton government at the present time.

It is pointed out that the Merchant Volunteers at present have no military force and arms sufficient to cope with the Government troops, and that therefore no test of arms will be attempted at this time. However, leaders of the corps are secretly planning to enlist the active support of local merchants' corps throughout the provinces, and it is probably that a general strike will be called by them in the near future.

A picked group of the Merchant Volunteers is now concentrated at Foushan, which is completely in their possession. The Canton Government has ordered mobilisation of its troops immediately and is taking steps to prevent calling of the general strike. Military airplanes in the service of the Southern Government are also being employed in staging a demonstration intended to awe the Volunteers into submission.

Authoritative sources declare that in the message sent by Dr. Sun Yat-sen to the Merchant's Volunteer Corps, the promise was made that the seized arms would be sold them at reasonable prices. The "reasonable prices" fixed by the Government, it is said, were $60 for each rifle delivered with certificate of purchase, and $160 if there is no certificate of purchase. These are based on the selling prices of the Canton Arsenal.

In his note to the corps, Dr. Sun is said to have charged Yeh Chun Lien-pak, commander of the Merchants' Corps, is seeking to make of himself a Chinese Mussolini, with the idea of overthrowing the present Canton Government. The note alleges that the Southern officials are in possession of proof that Chan has recently sent representatives to Wu Pei-fu in order to negotiate an agreement for the overthrow of the Cantonese officials. Amnesty is granted all members of the corps save Chan, "provided that they repent of their past misconduct and pledge allegiance to the Government". Otherwise, the note says, they shall be severely punished.

SOVIET NOT YET SATISFIED WITH LEGATION NOTES

Issue At Standstill; British Minister Calls On Karakhan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 22.—It appears that M. Karakhan's proposed amendment to his Note to Mr. Yoshizawa is not wholly satisfactory to the latter and discussion in regard to the matter is still being carried on. The matter is not expected to be settled for some days. Meanwhile, M. Karakhan has not replied to the Note of the Protocol Powers. Therefore, the question of the Russian Legation remains at a standstill.

The Peking and Tientsin Times was the only paper in Peking and Tientsin which published any editorial comment on M. Karakhan's Note of August 19 and the Rosta attack on America, which is generally attributed to M. Karakhan.

Sir Ronald Macleay, the British Minister, formally called on M. Karakhan yesterday.

Moscow, August 22.—An article in the Isvestia asserts that America fears a Russo-Japanese agreement which would create difficulties for American diplomacy in the Far East. Therefore, instead of the recent "knout blow" delivered by America in the shape of the American Exclusion Bill, Mr. Hughes now offers a cake in the form of a loan to Japan with which he hopes to purchase Japan's refusal to come to terms with Soviet Russia, "but the Japanese would prefer to refuse American sweetmeats since it is evident that in future the American knout will be frequently used on Japan, which, by the irony of fate, is made America's rival on the route to the shores of Far Eastern Asia".

Canton, August 14.—Leading militarists in Canton are beginning to rival each other in the matter of preparations for future supremacy. Each is trying to rally around him as many followers as possible, especially younger men ambitious of going into a career similar to his own. There now exist in Canton and vicinity six military academies, or war colleges, conducted with public funds.

General Chiang Kai-shek has a military academy at Whampoa under the auspices of the Kuomintang Reds, while General Chau Chi-teh, of the Yunnanese mercenaries, is conducting a school for his own clan. General Wu Te-chen, Canton Police Commissioner and concurrently Commandant of the Provincial Gendarmerie of Kwangtung, has a class for training officers, and General Wu Yu-shu, of the Western Department, is conducting a war college for members of his staff and others expecting to enter the service. Both Generals Li Tsai-hsin, of the West River Defense, and General Koo Chung-hsin, of the 3rd Northern Expeditionary Force, also have schools of this nature. A total of 3,000 cadets are under training in these six schools.

The Kwangtung Arsenal at Shekcheng, near Canton, is having new machinery installed, and it is expected that within 60 days all the works will be finished and operation of the plant will again be in order. The machinery was first bought by the Kwangsi militarists when in power in Canton nearly four years ago but arrangement for the final and full payment of the goods was not made by the present regime in Canton until a month ago, when delivery was made by the vendors to the Arsenal. Messrs. J. A. Rabbitt and Company, American engineerr, are putting up the machinery for the Arsenal.

VIOLENCE AND THREATS CHARGE FOR MERKULOFF

Former Head Of 'Whites' Is Accused By Russian Woman

N. P. Merkuloff, head of the Russian "White" Government which held power in the Maritime District a few years ago, and who is now a merchant in Shanghai, appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday before Mr. Ivanow, Russian Assessor, and Magistrate Sung, on charges of threats and violence, there being a few counts against the accused. The complainant in the first case is Miss Alexandra Eichenbaum, the daughter of Mr. Eichenbaum of the well-known tobacco company here, and there are also Chinese complainants. One complainant has a broken rib which he charges to the account of the defendant.

The trouble appears to have originated in some business difficulties between the defendant and the Robert and Eichenbaum Tobacco Co., on Weihaiwei Road, in which he is said to have invested capital after coming here from Vladivostok, and to have taken general charge of the sales work. Mr. Eichenbaum, after receiving no accounts from Merkuloff for some time, it is understood declined to let him have more of the factory's products until accounts were rendered. In response to this the defendant is said to have gone to the factory in an automobile, in company with a gang of Russian "Whites" of a type all too common in Shanghai, and proceeded to load up the automobile with cigarettes. Miss Alexandra Eichenbaum, who was in the factory at the time, interfered, and appears to have been roughly handled, while some Chinese employees who came to her assistance were badly beaten. It is alleged one man having a rib broken.

Mr. Lechich is appearing for the complainants in the case and Mr. Walden for the defendant. In Court yesterday Mr. Lechich briefly stated the case, and produced an X-ray plate and a medical report with regard to the broken rib.

Mr. Walden, for the defense, said that three prosecutions had been instituted, one by Mr. Eichenbaum, one by Miss Eichenbaum, and one by Tsa Yia-ching, and now there were two more, making five charges altogether, all for the same offense. He asked the Court to adjourn the case to enable him to prepare his defense, and further asked that the first three cases be postponed so that he could defend all the cases together.

The Court adjourned the case to next Friday, when all the charges are to be tried together. The defendant was released on $400 bail.

HERRIOT WINS TEST VOTE ON DECISIONS OF CONFERENCE

Adjournment Motion Is Rejected By Chamber

BERLIN APPROVAL

Dawes Proposals Are Adopted By Council

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 21.—The Chamber of Deputies was packed when M. Herriot made his statement on the London Conference today. He said that the Conference was only the first stage towards real peace. The Agreement marked the beginning of a new era of undiminished guarantee and security and ensured France the Treaty of Versailles. The Prime Minister said that the consequences would be grave if the Agreement were repudiated and a policy of isolated action preferred. The policy in the Ruhr had dominated the negotiations though he had refused to allow the Ruhr to be included in the Conference. It had been impossible for him to eliminate the problem all the more because he had had very strong reasons for thinking that if France remained in the Ruhr she would remain absolutely alone. It was a choice

LIBEL CHARGES IN DUNNE CASE SIX SUMMONSED

Editors And Officials Of Chinese Newspapers Defendants

Summonses were issued in the Mixed Court yesterday for six editors and officials of three Chinese newspapers who are charged with criminal libel as a result of editorials published in connection with the death recently of a coolie employed at Louza Police Station. Police Sub-Inspector Thomas Dunne of Louza Station was acquitted in the British Police Court of charges of manslaughter, when a post mortem examination showed that the coolie had met death from natural causes.

Hearing of the case will be taken up in the Mixed Court on Monday before Mr. Whitamore, British Assessor, and Magistrate Li.

The defendants named in the summonses are:

Messrs. Zung Poo-lai, editor and Lee Tsung-woo, managing director of the Shanghai Journal of Commerce.

Messrs. Hsu Chien-ping (Jabin Hsu), managing director, and Sun Toong-woo, editor of the Shanghai Tribune.

Messrs. Chen Lang-hyoeh, editor and Dih Tsei-tshing, managing director of the Eastern Times.

No bail bond has been required of the defendants, the summonses merely ordering them to appear before the court on Monday.

Mr. Jabin Hsu, who is being summoned as managing director of the Shanghai Tribune, severed his connection with that paper on August 19, according to notices published in the Shanghai Tribune and the foreign press.

The charges come as an outgrowth of the death of the coolie at the Shantung Road Hospital on August 13. Following his death, it was brought out that Sub-Inspector Dunne had slapped the coolie for refusing to do his work about the station. A charge of manslaughter was brought against Sub-Inspector Dunne in the British Court, but when the results of the post mortem showed the coolie's death to have been due to natural causes the charge was withdrawn.

In the meantime, however, there appeared in some of the Chinese newspapers attacks on Sub-Inspector Dunne which are the basis of the present action.

It is understood that Mr. M. Reader Harris has been instructed by Sub-Inspector Dunne to file civil suits for libel also against the Chinese newspapers, which, he alleges, defamed him.

NAVAL AND MILITARY HEADS HERE MEET TO ADOPT DEFENSE PLAN

Calm Attitude Is Maintained By Both Ling And Ho; Census Being Taken Of Residents Near Arsenal; Martial Law Unofficially In Force

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 22.—Foreign telegrams indicate that there is cause for anxiety as regards the rumored imminence of a conflict between Chekiang on the one hand and Fukien and Kiangsu on the other, in spite of Chinese official assurances to the contrary.

Plans for the defense of Shanghai and Woosung were completed yesterday at a conference between General Ho Feng-lin, the Military Governor of Shanghai and Sunkiang and Admiral Ling Kien-chang, Commander-in-chief of the Shanghai and Woosung Navy, held at the Lunghua Arsenal. While no details were given out, it was understood that strict precautions will be taken to prevent outlaws from taking advantage of the political dissension between here and Nanking.

A census will be taken by the Shanghai Garrison soldiers in the neighborhood of the Kiangnan Dock and the Lunghua Arsenal in order to clear the district of any possible harboring of spies.

Following the conference with General Ho, Admiral Ling, called a hurried conference of all the commanders of the local navy yesterday afternoon. Each commander was ordered to take an inventory of his ship and to file with Admiral Ling a statement of any equipment necessary for his ship to perform active service.

The report that the Nanking and Fukien navies are proceeding to Woosung waters was confirmed at the conference. When seen by friends, Admiral Ling maintained the most calm attitude and asserted that he and General Ho were confident that they were quite capable of maintaining the peace and order of the locality.

Although no official declaration was made for martial law in the Chinese territory, extra policemen were placed on duty yesterday with arms and with orders to "shoot to kill" in case of necessity.

The Red Cross here yesterday received an urgent message from the Chinese Red Cross Society of Hsiakwan, Nanking, requesting for supplies for field service.

The Kuo Wen News Agency carries a report that Tuchun Chi Hsieh-yuan of Nanking has dispatched two military detectives to Shanghai, named Chen Ting-mo and Liu Hsiang, to report to him the movements of the military and naval authorities in Shanghai.

Continued assertions of the imminence of war between Chekiang and Kiangsu and continued appeals by provincial and local organisations for preservation of

HUGE SEIZURE OF ARMS MADE ON PAUL LECAT

French Liner Scene Of Raid By Customs: 122 Pistols Are Confiscated

Arms and ammunition valued at well in excess of $10,000 were seized by Customs officials Thursday aboard the Messageries Maritimes Steamer Paul Lecat, which had arrived in port the previous day from Marseilles.

Three minor seizures of arms and ammunition, and three arrests were made by the police of the International Settlement and Chapei. One of the men arrested was steward from the Paul Lecat.

The arms confiscated aboard the French liner included 122 automatic pistols and 15,000 rounds of ammunition. Customs officials, in making the usual search of the ship for contraband, found them stowed behind the wainscoting in the second class pantry and in the oil chambers in the engine rooms.

The sailor from the Paul Lecat, a French citizen named Georges Gaillard, was taken into custody by Special Police Constable 124

Despite All, Post Office Sets New Record In 1923

In spite of political disturbances, divisions between North and South, bandits and provincial independence declarations, the Chinese Post Office during 1923 transported 473½ million pieces of mail matter which constituted an increase of 31½ million over the year 1921, the previous high point and an aggregate of 47 millions over 1922.

The annual report of the Chinese Post Office issued yesterday by the Directorate General of Posts of the Ministry of Communications is a credit to this model department of the Chinese Government which has carried on and improved steadily in spite of adverse conditions which have hampered other departments of the Government. The number of additional places in the Republic provided with postal facilities during the year was 1,733 of which number 290 were major establishments and 1,443 were minor establishments. The total number of places provided with postal facilities during the year was 40,318.

PARCELS POST

One of the interesting reasons given for increases in the parcels' post department is found in the fact that political disturbances have forced many private carrier out of business. This is interesting testimony to the prestige of the Post Office which has been permitted to carry on where private facilities were denied. Heavy movements of troops have also helped the parcels post business since the soldiers take advantage of the Post Office to send parcels from the scene of activities to their homes. The report does not state whether military loot is included in this business. The number of parcels transported rose from 4,800,000 to 5,300,000 and expressed in money value from $114,000,000 to $157,000,000. The amount of money orders cashed was $96,000,000 an increase of about 25½ percent over the previous year. Since international money orders issued amounted to only about one percent of the total, the great increase was made in purely domestic business. Foreign money orders issued amounted to $927,000 of which amount roughly $600,000 went to Japan, and most of it originated in the Three Eastern Provinces.

MANY TROUBLES

Some of the troubles of the department from bandits and irresponsible militarists make interesting reading. For example we are informs that the postmaster at Tsaoyang in Hupeh Province is still being held by bandits after six months and that several couriers have been killed and many inland postmasters have been kidnapped and held for ransome. Cases have been reported where letter carriers have been robbed twice on one trip.

The new air-mail service for the carrying of passengers and mail between Peking and Tientsin started in the summer of 1923 is referred to as is also the summer air-mail service between Peking and Peitsho.

The report consists of about 100 pages with statistical tables and detailed information with some colored charts and graphs in the back pages. A picture of the new post office at Harbin appears in the front of the report.

Defendant Goes Free As Complainant Pays Fine

How it is possible to come into a court as a complainant, and depart the worse in pocket for the experience, was shown yesterday morning in the U. S. Consular Court, when Mr. J. R. Montgomery was the complainant in a charge of assault preferred against E. R. Tindall, chief engineer of the s.s. Wheatland Montana. The case was heard by Mr. N. E. Lurton, U. S. Commissioner.

Evidence was given by a Chinese constable to the effect that he saw an argument between the complainant and the defendant, which ended in the defendant striking the complainant on the head with his fist.

Complainant, who stated at the outset that he did not bring the charge, but that it was brought by the police said he was walking near Wuchang Road when he saw the accused in an altercation with a Russian constable and a Chinese in a crowd. As witness and a friend of his drew near defendant hit witness over the head, and "not being a young chicken" himself he returned what was coming to him. Witness's forehead was cut with the blow he received. Both he and the defendant were taken to the station.

Here complainant went on to give details of what happened there, remarking that for a time the sergeant on duty seemed to think he was the guilty man. He then continued that he had been advised to go to a doctor and have his head sewn up, but he did not think it serious enough for that.

"In any event," he continued. "That man had no ——— business to assault me."

The Commissioner: "I don't want you use such expressions here."

"I am sorry, it was a slip of the tongue."

"Well, don't let your tongue slip here."

"I don't think you want to be severe with me Mr. Lurton. . . ."

"You understood what I said to you a moment ago. You just answer the questions put to you, if you have anything more to say."

"I have nothing more to say," replied the complainant. "I would like to take this to a higher court."

"If you make another remark like that, I will fine you for contempt of court, you understand?" riposted the Commissioner, whereupon the complainant subsided, refusing to answer a question of Sub-Inspector W. Jones, a minute later, because, as he said, the Commissioner had told him not to say anything.

Mr. W. Hammond, who was with the complainant, said that defendant brushed between him and complainant and turning round hit him with his fist.

DEFENDANT'S STORY

Defendant, stated he was walking along the road, when he accidentally bumped into the complainant, who thereupon used an objectionable term to him. Defendant asked who he was talking to, and complainant said he was talking to him, whereupon defendant struck him.

The commissioner in dismissing the charge, stated that while the defendant undoubtedly struck the complainant, the latter had used

SIKH INDICTED FOR ATTACK ON CHINESE WOMAN

To Be Tried For Slashing Off Ear Of Alleged Sweetheart

In the British Police Court yesterday, before Magistrate G. W. King, an indictment was found against Mahin Singh, the Sikh watchman who was arrested on Wednesday last after slashing off the ear of a young Chinese woman who he says was his sweetheart. The defendant was committed for trial before a higher court on the charge of wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm. Bail was refused.

Mr. Maitland is prosecuting the case. Mr. Priestwood appeared yesterday as counsel for the defendant, and cross-questioned the complainant closely regarding details of the incident. The defendant was not put on the stand.

The girl, Tsang Wang-sze, questioned first by the prosecution and then by the defense, yesterday gave evidence of the attack. She was walking along Thibet Road near Peking Road when the Indian, who had been following her, come up to her and made an indecent proposal. She did not know the man, though she may have seen him or spoken to him at some time, as there were many people in the Ewo mill where he was employed. She did not answer him, she said, and he pushed her back against the wall and cursed her, finally saying, 'You think a lot of yourself, don't you? I'll have your life." With this he drew a short razor. She had already raised her arms in self-defense, and the man bit her on the right arm before drawing the razor and slashing off her ear. She tried to seize the razor and was cut on the finger. She screamed out when cut, then got into a ricsha, intending to go to a hospital at once. The Sikh caught hold of the back of the ricsha and said "Police Station'. A Chinese police constable came up immediately afterward and they went to the Police Station, she going to hospital from there.

Police Sergeant Evans of Louza Station gave evidence of arrest. The defendant had come to the station Wednesday morning, immediately followed by the girl and the Chinese constable. The sergeant, examining the girl's ear, sent her off to the hospital at once. The Sikh interpreter came in, and the defendant at once began to tell him about the case, saying that he had slashed the girl. After being cautioned through the interpreter, the man continued, and stated that he had been intimate with the girl for two years. He met her on Thibet Road on the morning of the attack, and after an altercation she showed him pawn tickets covering jewelry which he states he gave her. He said he would teach her not to "do down" a Sikh again and drew the razor from his pocket and slashed her. After this voluntary statement Sergeant Evans charged the man and put him under arrest.

In the course of the trial Mr. Priestwood produced a photograph showing the girl in a dancing pose, the defendant standing in the background to the left. The complainant, questioned, said the girl in the picture was herself, but she had never had her photograph taken with the defendant.

Mr. Priestwood at the conclusion of the evidence asked that the case be tried summarily, and the charge of assault with intent modified to unlawful wounding. The Court refused this.

After committing the defendant for trial Mr. Priestwood applied for bail, pointing out that the defendant was willing to have the matter taken up in Court and had voluntarily gone to the Police Station. Mr. Maitland, for the prosecution, objected, pointing out that the girl was out on the streets unprotected. It was his desire that the defendant be held in custody. The Court, under the circumstances, refused to release the defendant on bail.

Local Military And Naval Heads Adopt Defence Measures

peace fill the local Chinese newspapers.

One paper reports the transportation of a considerable supply of arms and ammunition from Nanking to Quinsan and Yi Shing. Airplanes have also been sent to this locality, the report says, and one regiment of the 3rd division has been sent from Yangchow to Quinsan via Chekiang.

The same source declares that the families of the Nanking militarists have already left their homes and gone to Tientsin from Nanking.

Reported activities on the Chekiang side include a strict censorship of all mail and telegrams in and out of Hangchow. It is also reported that Fan Chi-yung, a representative of Tupan Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang, has arrived at Canton to enlist the support of Dr. Sun Yat-sen in the event of an outbreak on the Chekiang border.

Reports from Peking assert that former Premier Sun Pao-chi intends to make a journey to Nanking and Chekiang with a view to acting as mediator in averting the impending strife.

Among the organisations here which are endeavoring to assure a maintenance of peace are the Eleven Roads Street Unions of Chapei, which are reported to have dispatched telegrams to both Kiangsu and Chekiang urging that the peace agreement be respected.

The positions of the rival leaders are stated in telegrams received locally. Each declares that it is his firm desire to maintain peace, and that he will not be the aggressor. Marshal Chi of Nanking, however, points out that the Chekiang forces have already violated the spirit of the peace agreement in harboring military forces hostile to Kiangsu, and that it will be necessary for him to maintain peace and order on the Chekiang border. In this manner he justifies his movement of troops to the border.

More Protests On Japan's Luxury Tax

Additional support for the campaign being conducted locally against imposition of the Japanese luxury tax on Chinese products was given by the Shanghai Residents Association to Encourage National Products.

The Association, following a meeting, has decided to send letters to all local Chinese manufacturing interests urging them to send delegates to a meeting to protest against imposition of the tax and to adopt such countermeasures as may seem feasible. The letters state that the tax violates the agreements made at the Washington Conference.

Japanese Aviatrix To Fly For Chang

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, August 19.—Miss Shigeno Kibe, aged 22, daughter of Mr. Kibe, a wealthy timber-merchant of Shin Gishu, Korea, and contractor to General Chang Tso-lin of Mukden, has been engaged by the famous Chinese War-lord as a member of his aviation corps.

Miss Kige is about to graduate at the Munesato Aviation School near Tsuruni, a suburb of Tokio, and is expected to take up her new duties soon after. Before she starts for Mukden, she will take part in an air-competition promoted by the Imperial Aviation Association.

at Yangtszepoo and Burkill Roads on Thursday night. The constable's attention was attracted to the man by his suspicious appearance. Search of the man revealed 264 rounds of .25 calibre ammunition. He told the police that he had bought the ammunition and three pistols at Marseilles, but that the three pistols had been seized by the Customs in their raid of the ship.

Gaillard was turned over to the French authorities for trial in the French Consular Court.

Another arrest for carrying arms made by the Wayside police Thursday night when Chinese detective constables picked up a Japanese named H. Fukuora, 1400 Burkill Road, at Yangtszepoo and Muirhead Roads. He had in his possession at the time four automatic pistols and 300 rounds of ammunition. He was turned over to the Japanese consular court for trial.

The third arrest for possession of arms was made by a Chinese Police Constable attached to the fifth district, Chapei, who noticed a Chinese acting suspiciously at the Shanghai-Nanking Railway Station. On being searched the man was found to have in his possession 300 rounds of pistol ammunition.

In an arms haul at 645 Sinza Road early yesterday morning 19 guns, with ammunition, were seized by the Police, led by Mr. Springfield. A Chinese woman, Tsang Van-sz, was arrested, together with a ten-year-old girl. In addition to the arms and ammunition, the police seized at the house a quantity of German money, 720,000,000 marks in all, and about $12 in Chinese money.

The defendant was brought up in the Mixed Court yesterday for trial before Mr. Jacobs, American Assessor, and Magistrate Loh, charged with keeping arms and ammunition. D. S. Andrews gave evidence of the raid. He stated that the accused woman was the sweetheart of the tenant of the house, who had absconded. He asked the Court for an order to detain the little girl.

The case was remanded for one week, and an order given detaining the child until the case is heard.

the language complained of, and he had no difficulty in coming to that conclusion in view of the language the complainant had used in court.

Complainant thereupon commenced to murmur complaints about the justice administered, and remarked "I have been beaten up and get no justice. I will not stand for it."

Whereupon the commissioner said, "I have warned you for the last time to keep quiet."

Complainant continued his undercurrent of remarks despite the warning taps of the deputy marshal's gavel, and after he had expressed the hope that the newspapers would have all about it, the Commissioner again spoke to the complainant and said he was guilty of contempt, fining him Gold $5.

"You fine me $5?" asked the complainant.

"Yes," replied the Commissioner.

"Well, you pay it then," answered the complainant, who, however was taken out to the clerk's office where he parted with the necessary amount before being allowed to go free.

Herriot Wins Test Vote On Decision Of The Conference

between re-establishment of the Inter-Allied Entente or maintenance of isolated action.

M. Herriot said that the French Government had neglected no opportunity to bring up the question of inter-Allied debts but it was impossible to join discussion of the debts to the execution of the Dawes plan. He said that the debts and the question of security would be discussed at a special conference later but he had obtained that the evacuation of the Cologne zone would not be contemplated until Germany had satisfied her treaty obligations, including disarmament. The Conference had reached a deadlock on July 26 and its failure did not seem impossible. M. Herriot claimed that France saved the Conference by proposing arbitration as a solution.

M. Herriot's speech was applauded by the Left and was received with laughter and protests by the Right. Noisy interruption by the Communists who subsequently violently demonstrated on the question of amnesties compelled the President to suspend the sitting.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, August 21.—The Federal Council has adopted all the Bills carrying out the Dawes report.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Brussels, Aug. 21.—The report submitted by M. Theunis on the London Conference was approved by the Belgian Ministry.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 21.—Mr. Philip Snowden's interviews published in the English press criticising the London Agreement and expressing fears that France may use the occupation of the Ruhr as a lever to extract commercial advantages from Germany beyond those provided in the Dawes report have led to indignant comment by the press.

The Echo de Paris expresses the opinion that Mr. Snowden is attempting to dictate as to how France should conduct her affairs and demands that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald should formally repudiate Mr. Snowden's imprudent words.

The Oeuvre expresses the opinion that Mr. Snowden shows narrow comprehension of the fact that Britain's true commercial interests, which are like those of France, lie in development of the world's power of absorption and not in restriction of Germany's exports. The journal declares that this policy is not worthy of a Socialist.

The Gaulois is of the opinion that the interviews show that the attitude of the British Treasury and Foreign Office towards France has not changed.

Later.—M. Herriot strongly opposed the motion of M. Bokanowski to adjourn the discussion until the committees reported on the plans. The motion was rejected by 320 votes to 269. A Communist motion was rejected by 359 votes to 28.

The representative of Mecklenburg-Strelitz voted against the bills. The representative of Thuringia abstained from voting.

The Railway Bill, involving a change in the Constitution was adopted by the requisite two-third majority the representatives of Bavaria, Thuringia, Wurtemberg and Mecklenburg-Strelitz abstained from voting.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Aug. 22.—After a sitting which lasted several hours, the German People's Party in the Reichstag unanimously decided to accept the decision of the London Conference is spite of the burdens imposed on Germany but added that it was the duty of the Government to clear up the diplomatic situation by all the means in its power.

The German National Party in the Reichstag unanimously decided to adhere to the resolution of July 22 demanding immediate evacuation of the Ruhr and restoration of the German railways, etc.

All the papers interpret the National Party resolution as meaning that the Party will vote against the Dawes Bills in the Reichstag next week thus ensuring their rejection. This will mean immediate dissolution of the Reichstag and another general election which will be tantamount to a plebiscite.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Aug. 22.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday evening adjourned till this morning. The Communist motion which was rejected proposed an adjournment until the Senate had discussed the Amnesty Bill.

Formosa Governor To Resign, Report

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, August 19.—It is confidently reported that the present Governor General of Formasa Mr. Kakichi Uchida, is about to resign, in spite of earlier reports to the contrary. Among those mentioned for the post is Mr. Takio Izawa, former Inspector-General of the Metropolitan Police under the Hara Ministry.

Tokio, August 22.—Major Zanni will continue his flight with the spare plane which arrived in Kobe today on board the Kamo Maru from London. It will be immediately trans-shipped probably by the Wakasa Maru from Kobe tomorrow and will reach Haiphong, to which place Major Zanni has ordered it to be sent, within a fortnight. These plans were announced by Senor Garcia Uriburu, the Argentine Minister in Tokio, who today received a cable from Major Zanni informing him of the plane's whereabouts and asking for urgent shipment to Haiphong. Major Zann cabled: "The plane crashed but I am determined to continue."

Senor Patricio Murphy, Major Zanni's advance agent, who is waiting at Tientsin for orders, has been directed to continue laying out of the route via Mukden, Pyengyang, Taiku, Hiroshima, Osaka and Tokorozawa.

Whether the trans-Pacific flight will be attempted will not be settled till Major Zanni arrives in Tokio, but Senor Uriburu, Japanese officials and the American Air officers who assisted the flight of the American airmen are of the opinion that the season is too late.

Arbitration Plan Proposed In Japan For Labor Disputes

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Aug. 19.—Compulsory publication of the cause or an dispute, with a public hearing by properly appointed representatives of each side, assisted by officials and press representatives, is the plan proposed under the terms of a suggestion Arbitration Bill for the settlement of labor quarrels.

Hitherto such disputes have been solved by an appeal to the police authorities and to the courts, but it is now suggested that a more satisfactory method would be to make the whole matter publicly known, and let the public judge and decide the merits of the case.

It is stated that this Act will be proposed for legislation in the coming Session of the Diet.

Indians Inventing Offences, Charge Made By Governor

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 21.—With reference to the telegram from Reuter's Calcutta correspondent yesterday that a campaign was being carried on in favor of the removal of the Governor for a passage in a speech which he made at Dacca, it has been ascertained that Lord Lytton addressing a police parade on August 6, in the course of warning to the revolutionaries for their threats against the Bengal police said that the thing which had distressed him most since coming to India was finding that mere hatred of authority could drive Indian men and induce Indian women to invent offences against their own honor merely to bring discredit on Indian policemen.

WAR RUMORS CAUSE FAILURE OF FIVE BANKS

Pressure Of Foreign Banks Makes Situation Worse

During this week, five native banks have failed, viz., Yung Tsing native Bank (永春莊) failed on 18th, Yung Chong native Bank (永興莊) on 19th, Yu Foong native Bank (裕豐莊) and Loong Yu native Bank (隆裕莊) on 20th, and Teh Yu native Bank (德餘) on 21st. Among them only Yu Foong is member of the Guild of native Banks or, in other words, native clearing bank.

The present over tight market is partly owing to war rumors and partly owing to the pressure of foreign banks. More than eight million tael of chop loan was asked and withdrawn by foreign banks from native banks within recent few days. It is rumored that the native banks will start a mass-close-up for one week if further pressure be imposed. It is hoped that the foreign banks will change their present pressing policy, as the failure of native banks will mean loss to foreigners as well as to Chinese, and even, to foreign banks themselves. The present crisis is ranged as most serious one within the last ten years.

The present sharp drop of Chinese national bonds has made the Shanghai stock Exchange necessary to close its market, many speculators are reported to have escaped.

RENDITION OF MIXED COURT IS STILL FAR OFF

Powers Object To Features In Scheme Proposed By Peking

Peking, Aug. 19.—To the proposals submitted by the Chinese Government on the 9th of the month in regard to the rendition of the Mixed Court of Shanghai, the Diplomatic Corps still raises serious objection to at least three of the articles, and although the Corps has not yet replied to the note of the Chinese Government, it will do so before long.

In the first place, the Diplomatic Corps objects to the Chinese proposal that no foreign assessors will be permitted to attend the trial of cases in which only the Chinese people are involved. In other words, the position taken by the Chinese Government that assessors can be present only in criminal or civil cases which affect the peace and order of Shanghai and in which foreigners are involved, is not approved by the foreign Powers. They insist that foreign Assessors should have the right to attend all cases, whether the foreign nationals are involved or not.

Secondly, the Diplomatic Corps is not in favor of the proposal that appeals can be made to the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Shanghai in all cases in which foreigners enjoying consular jurisdiction in China are involved. It is pointed out that the Office of the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Shanghai is not a judicial tribunal and the commissioner of Foreign affairs himself is not a judicial officer. It is neither logical nor advisable to bring appeals to him for cases already decided by the "Special Court of Shanghai" (The Mixed Court to be known as such) and it is too much to expect he can review judicially what has already been tried in the Mixed Court.

In the third place, the Diplomatic Corps is opposed also to the proposal that nationals of the non-treaty Powers and those who have already been deprived of the privilege of consular jurisdiction, should be tried by the Chinese judges alone and without the presence of assessors. The Diplomatic corps maintains that, in the case of non-treaty Power nationals and those who have lost their extra territorial privilege in China, the Senior Member of the Consular body of Shanghai should be present as the assessor on behalf of them.

In view of this serious difference of opinion, it is feared that the day is yet far off before the question relating to the restoration of the Mixed Court of Shanghai can be settled.

U. S. Coast Guard Seize Booze Ship

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Savannah, August 21.—The coastguards have seized the Charles Heyde, a turbine-driven schooner, carrying 9,600 quarts of spirits and much absinthe and beer, outside the International limits. Mr. Bau Recovering; Funeral For Dead Constable On Today

Mr. Y. C. Bau, managing director of the Commercial Press who was shot in the arm Thursday morning by auto bandits, rested well throughout yesterday and his attending physician, Dr. W. S. New, predicts an early recovery from the wound, which was not considered serious. A large number of friends attempted to see him yesterday, but were courteously told not to talk to the invalid as utmost care must be taken to preserve all his strength.

Local bodies of Chapei met at a joint meeting yesterday and passed resolutions to increase the constabulary force in the district and to conduct a thorough cleaning campaign in the district to rid it of bandits. Recent reports show there is a considerable number of bandit dens there.

The Commercial Press gave $500 to the family of the deceased constable, Yen Yu-shan, and $200 for funeral expenses. It also gave $200 to the constable who participated in the chase of the bandits. Messrs. Shen Lien-fang, Hsu Chien-ling and Chen Ping-him each gave $100 to the family of the dead constable.

Funeral services for the deceased with be held today. A number of prominent Chapei merchants and residents will attend.

'JIMMY' DOLAN GIVES CUP FOR S.V.C. MEETING

American Companies In Hankow And Shanghai To Contest For Trophy

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, August 10.—Mr. James S. Dolan, manager for China of the China & Java Export Company, has just donated a beautiful silver cup as a trophy to be competed for between the American Volunteer Companies of Hankow and Shanghai.

This trophy, which will be one of the outstanding features of com- interport competitions, will add additional interest in the Hankow-Shanghai rifle

The details of competition for this cup have not yet been drawn up, but it is understood that the first clash for its possession will take place during the coming 1924-1925 season.

Mr. Dolan arrived in Hankow a few days ago on a short business trip, and will return to Shanghai this week.

Remedios' Team Win Mixed Doubles In Park Tennis Meet

The "Mixed Doubles" finals in the Jungkew Park Lawn Tennis tournament were played on Saturday, between Miss T. Collaco and Mr. A. M. d'Aquino on one side and Miss S. Remedios and Mr. J. F. Remedios on the other, and resulted in a win for the Remedios side, the final scores being 1-6, 6-4, 4-6.

Miss Collaco and Mr. d'Aquino did not seem to be able to get into their game at first, and played decidedly below their usual form in the first set. In the second set, however, they picked up, and in the third started off as if they were going to win, but they had a bad run here and lost out against the steady game of the Remedios' team. Both the Remedios' played a very good game throughout, and some of Miss Remedios' strokes were quite out of the ordinary.

Mr. G. Norris referred the match.

PRETENDER TO AFGHAN THRONE LEADING REVOLT

Anti-British Propaganda Is Filling Russian Newspapers

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 21.—Reuter's Agency learns that a Ghilzai tribe under a pretender to the Afghan throne is operating in Khost and has captured Altimur, a minor pass leading to India. The Amir is returning to Kabul.

Russian newspapers during the past fortnight have been full of anti-British propaganda asserting that British agents formented the insurrection in Afghanistan.

According to Reuter's correspondent at Riga, the Izvestia, the Soviet official organ, appeals to British workers for their support against "British oriental aggression" and alleges that the insurrection in Arghanistan is a blow directed against the Soviet.

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 22.—Connection between Moscow propaganda and the outbreak of revolutionary activities in Afghanistan has been clearly established, says the Political Observer of the Daily Telegraph, who adds that it is remarkable that in their desire to harm the British Empire, the Bolsheviks are ready to support the most reactionary elements in Oriental countries.

The Persian Monarchists, the writer goes on, were supported by the Soviet envoy in Teheran in their successful offensive against the Democrats and Republicans simply for the reason that the latter's sympathies were pro-British.

The present outbreak in Afghanistan is led by fanatical mullahs, who resent the clearly-expressed tendency of the Amir's Government to dissociate secular affairs from religious influences. These fanatics, according to the writer, are supported with advice and money by the Soviet Agent in Kabul and propagandists beyond the Bokhara border.

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, August 22.—In response to a request from Kabul, two British aeroplanes from Peshawar with an Afghan officer on board, have been sent to Kabul with a view to purchase by the Amir's Government.

SHANGHAI WILL PLAY ISABEL TEAM TODAY

Game Scheduled To Begin At 4 O'clock At Race Course

The Shanghai ball tossing organisation will engage the nine from the U. S. S. Isabel this afternoon at the Race Course.

The game is scheduled to start at four o'clock and is expected to be a lively one. Since the Isabel crew took the major score in a conflict earlier in the season, and will have to defend themselves against the avenging spirit of the Shanghai aggregation.

Chinese Sentenced For Infringement Of "Beehive" Mark

The case of infringement of trade marks brought by Messrs. Patons and Baldwins, Ltd., manufacturers of "Beehive" knitting wools, etc., against Lie Koh-ping, a Chinese merchant here, was concluded in the Mixed Court yesterday before Mr. Whitamore, British Assessor, and Magistrate Li. The Court found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to $100 fine or three weeks' imprisonment.

The charge was the use of labels so closely resembling the "Beehive" mark of the complainants as to be calculated to deceive customers. Mr. Andrews, representing Messrs. Patons and Baldwins here, gave evidence at a previous hearing of having sent his coolie to get some of the wool the defendant was selling, and having received same with labels closely resembling their own.

The defendant, on the stand yesterday, referred to the big import business which his company has been carrying on. As regards wool, he started the import of this last February, with 400 pounds from England, received without labels. He had sold wool to the witness (Mr. Andrews' coolie), but without labels. The Police had searched his place later and found some wool, but so far as he knew without labels. He understood the wool went through several hands after leaving his place.

Being new to the business, he did not know what colors to get from England, and wrote to a Badbury manufacturer asking him to recommend some wool. He had asked advice from a Chinese broker (Zung Ming-kyi, now in Shantung), from whom he received a card with samples and numbers. This was the reason the plaintiff could state that the numbers on the packets of wool were the same as his own, though when the defendant received the wool from the broker he thought the numbers simply represented the colors. The wool was not cheap, costing him about $2.00 per pound, and he sold it for from $2.20 to $2.50. He was preparing to get more wool out from England. He felt that in this prosecution he was the victim of a conspiracy.

The defendant did not know if labels were found in his place or not. He was not aware that the numbers were the same as the complainants. None of the wool he had bore any labels.

Three witnesses, a neighbor of the defendant, a customs broker who had handled some of the wool, and an employee, were put on the stand to testify. All stated that there were no labels on the wool sold by the defendant.

Mr. Allman, counsel for the defense, in summing up stated that Mr. Andrews had sent a coolie to get certain evidence and the coolie had gotten what was expected of him. A more responsible person should have been sent. Mr. Allman asked that the case be dismissed on account of insufficient evidence.

Assessor Jacobs, in pronouncing sentence, said that the Court was quite satisfied as to the accused's guilt. These cases were at the present time dealt with very severely in the courts in China, one man having recently been sentenced to two years for a similar offense. The present case was not so serious, inasmuch as the defendant did not manufacture the goods. There was no evidence to prove that he put the labels on, but there was proof that he was selling the wool. Under the circumstances, he gave the defendant the choice of $100 fine or three weeks' imprisonment.

Home Cricket

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 21.—The match between the Minor Counties and the South Africans was resumed today in showery weather.

On a good wicket, the South Africans brought their score from 103 for 9 to 149, Meyer taking 6 wickets for 60.

The Minor Counties scored 272 in their second innings, Titchmarsh making 80 and Chapman 68.

The South Africans had scored 66 for 1 wicket, when rain intervened and stumps were drawn.

Scores:—Minor Counties 196 and 272, South Africans 149 and 66 for 1 wicket.

Canada's Pledge To Empire Conveyed To Sir Frederick Field

(Reuter's American Service)

Ottawa, August 22.—Rear-Admiral Sir Frederick Field, the Commander of the Special Service Squadron, and his staff were the guests of honor at a State dinner here last night.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King, said that there was no doubt that Canada was prepared to play her full part if ever danger threatened the Empire.

Sir Robert Borden said that Canada's assumption of nationhood involved all the responsibility of preparation for national defence.

Rear-Admiral Sir Frederick Field, in reply, alluded to the restriction of the British naval forces by the Washington Agreement and the necessity for continued provision to safeguard the Empire trade routes. He emphasised that naval defence involved long and careful training. It took three years to build a battleship and nine years to train the officers and men.

HUPEH POLICE HEAD SEEKS TO CHECK PLAGUE

Street Sales Of Water Melons And Other Fruits Are Forbidden

Hankow, August 19.—The Commissioner of the Hupeh Police is said to be very energetic in taking steps for the prevention of plague in the Chinese cities as a result of the recent floods. The Commissioner gave his subordinates instructions to the effect that from now on more attention must be paid to sanitary conditions in the streets and lanes and that the sale of watermelons and other fruit on the streets should be strictly forbidden. It is believed that the melons which the natives are selling on the roadside are dangerous as they are likely to contain disease germs. Each summer many children have been known to die through eating them.

Peking, Aug. 20.—The following reports regarding flood conditions have been received by the China International Famine Relief Commission:

Shunyi Hsien.—Ten days steady rain since July 6 resulted in the Ta Pei Ho overflowing its banks. About a thousand mu were inundated. At the same time the Tsien Kan Ho and the Tsai Chia Ho flooded the surrounding country to a depth of about five feet.

Jenkiu Hsien.—Reports from here state that over 400 villages were submerged and that the people are living in the open as all their houses are destroyed.

Pingshan.—The Fu To Ho rose rapidly but is not yet threatening.

Hualjou.—Heavy rains have flooded the plain to the depth of four feet, about 40 villages being submerged.

Yutien.—Some 500 villages out of a total of 800 were submerged, all the crops are destroyed.

Tsanghwang.—Ten days heavy rain destroyed the greater portion of the crops, and many houses were washed away.

Shentseh.—The lower areas here were flooded and about 40,000 chien of houses were destroyed.

Yuanshih.—Steady rain since July 6 has inundated nineteen villages, several feet of sand was deposited on the young crops.

Kaoyi.—Continuous rain experienced here since the commencement of July caused the Ti Ho to break its banks, the railway being damaged and 46 villages inundated, some eight feet of water lying on the plain.

Kichsien.—Steady rain here since the beginning of July caused a break of 3,000 feet in the Fu river dyke, and about 130 villages were inundated.

Enhsien.—The river is reported to have overflowed at Wuhsien and inundated about 150 villages, affecting some 60,000 people.

Hengshui.—There has been another break in the Kichsien region and about 300 villages were flooded.

Peikouho.—Eight feet of water is reported in this area.

Kuchow.—The neighboring rivers overflowed on July 16 and did great damage to the houses and crops.

Kulu.—Reports that the heavy rain experienced in July broke the dykes of the Fu river and inundated about 70 villages.

Kichow.—Ten days' heavy rain in July resulted in a break of 380 feet in the Sun Ho dyke, and 309 villages are reported as flooded.

Poyeh.—The dykes in this area have broken and inundated some 92 villages, all communication except by boat being cut off from the hsien.

Wuklang.—Heavy rain during July led to the overflowing of the Fu To Ho and the Fu Yang Ho, about 7 feet of water flooding the plain, and damaging more than 100 villages.

Tsai Yu Chen.—Ten days' rain in the beginning of July caused the Feng Ho to rise rapidly and break its dykes outside the city for a distance of 600 feet, 70 villages being inundated and the harvest totally ruined.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 19.—Mr. Cheng Keh suggested at the Cabinet meeting that $50,000 should be alloted for expenses connected with the flood prevention work being carried out by Marshal Feng Yuhsiang's men at Hsungtupo.

Evidence Completed In I. B. C. Suit In Hongkong

Evidence in the case in which the International Banking Corporation of Hongkong is suing the compradore of the bank and his guarantor for the recovery of $200,000 which was lost from the banks premises two years ago, has all been heard and the matter is now in the hands of His Honor Mr. H. H. J. Gompertz, chief justice, for judgment.

The bank, through its counsel, charged that under their agreement with their compradore, Iu Ku-un, he and his guarantor, Ngok Lau, were personally responsible for the loss of the money which, plaintiffs allege, was under the compradore's care and control at the time of the theft. The defense denied this.

At the close of the day's business on September 28, 1922, there should have been a sum of $582,303.35 in the safe, according to the books of both plaintiff and defendant. The money was counted and the plaintiffs discovered that $200,000 was missing.

Counsel for the plaintiff, Mr C. G. Alabaster, K. C., said that it was not thought that the money had been stolen at night. The vault had two doors and a grill door to it. The outer door was controlled by three keys, two keys and a combination, and in order to get into it it would be necessary to have the key of one of the locks which the compradore kept, the key to the second lock which was kept by Mr. Armstrong and to know the combination which was in the possession of the cashier. One would then require the safe keys and the keys of the grill door.

The plaintiffs could not state definitely when the theft took place but they were satisfied that it did not take place until after September 19 when there was only about $123,000 left in reserve. It was obvious that the sum of $200,000 could not have been stolen on that day.

It is understood that the bank has been reimbursed for the sum lost and the present legal action has been taken at the instigation of the insurance company.

Wayside Police Raid Morphia Den

Six men were taken into custody Thursday night when police from the Wayside station, under Inspector Crookdake, raided a place at 34A Seward Road, which, it is alleged, injections of morphia were being sold. One man was charged with being the operator of the place, and the five others were held as frequenters.

In the raid, the police seized six hypodermic syringes, a quantity of morphine, and a small amount of currency.

Anti-Opium Meeting To Be Held Here Tomorrow

Preparations for a mass meeting to be held in the Assembly Hall of the General Chamber of Commerce, Honan Road, at 3 p.m. tomorrow are being made by the National Anti-Opium Association as a first step in its war upon the drug evil. The Association is also issuing a call to the people of all cities of China to observe September 28 as an anti-opium Sunday, with parades, demonstrations, and a demand to the Government to enforce the laws against the opium traffic and cultivation of the poppy and to carry out faithfully the agreement with the other powers.

The decision to hold the mass meeting Sunday and to arrange for nation-wide demonstrations on September 28, was reached at the first business session of the association Thursday afternoon at the General Chamber of Commerce, when twenty-two organisations were represented. The association was organised recently by the Society for the Advancement of Education, the China Medical Association, the Council on Health Education, the National Committee of the Y.M.C.A., the National Christian Council, the General Chamber of Commerce, and the Chinese Red Cross.

At the meeting Thursday, the Reverend K. T. Chung, provisional secretary of the association, reported on how the organisation had been started and impressed the group present with the importance of taking immediate measures to express the strong support of the people of the Shanghai district for the aims of the Geneva Conference in seeking to limit the production of opium and its derivatives strictly to the amount needed for medicinal and scientific use. Mr. Chung also laid stress on the necessity for seeking to devise an efficient scheme for co-operation with the government in the suppression of native opium cultivation and traffic.

The session elected the following thirteen persons to constitute the board of directors of the association: Dr. P. W. Kuo, Mr. George Shu, Mr. Sung Han-chang; Dr. S. M. Woo, Dr. Mary Stone, Rev. K. T. Chung, Dr. Hwang Ren-tsi, Dr. R. Y. Lo, Mr. Yuen Hai-dau, Miss Ting Hsu-ching, Mr. Wu Shan, Mr. Mah Hsiang-pah and Mr. Chang I-p'an. The directorate will hold its first meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the General Chamber of Commerce, when it will consider the selection of a people's representative for the Geneva Conference and will make plans for the demonstration on September 28.

Speakers at the mass meeting tomorrow afternoon will include Mr. H. H. Kung, vice-chairman of the Shansi Opium Suppression Association; Mr. Ling Yen-foo, secretary of the International Anti-Opium Association of Shanghai, and Mr. Wang Pei-yuen, of the National Headquarters of the Chinese Red Cross. Practical measures whereby the people can co-operate with the government in suppression of the opium evil will be discussed.

COVENT GARDEN MARKET HIT BY PORTERS' STRIKE

Thousands Of Tons Of Fruits And Vegetables Held Up At Docks

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 21.—The strike of the porters of Covent Garden for an increase in wages, which has been in progress for a week, is becoming worse. The Transportworkers' Union has instructed dockers not to handle supplies intended for Covent Garden with the result that many thousands of tons of fruit and vegetables are being held up at the docks in London and other ports. Covent Garden employers, on the ground that the men struck without warning, refused an invitation to visit the Ministry of Labor with a view to conciliation and also declined a suggestion made by Mr. Bevin, the men's leader, for a meeting under an independent chairman.

The National Union of Railwaymen has decided to co-operate if necessary with the Transportworkers' Union in stopping the cross-channel supply of fruit and vegetables for Covent Garden.

Commercial News

Interest Is Concentrated On Chinese Ore Field

New York, July 20.—China is generally believed to contain enormous reserves of iron ore and coal, so that its future as a steel-making competitor has been considered quite assured, the time depending somewhat on the needs of its own people, and more on the opportunities for export of iron and steel products, even to such far points as the Pacific coast of the United States.

It appears from a comprehensive report issued by the geological survey of the Republic of China that iron ores are widely distributed over China's provinces but that the commercial deposits are far less than had been supposed, and that most of them are of a type that is not commercial except after preliminary concentration. The tonnage of naturally high grade ores are scattered in a way that makes them of comparatively slight value, and many of them are in regions that are now, and probably will be for a long time, remote from railway transport.

It has been supposed, for instance, that the Province of Shansi would be found an exceedingly promising situation for the development of an extensive iron and steel industry. It has tremendous coal resources and innumerable native iron smelters were distributed through the Province.

But investigation discovers that the ores of Shansi, except for narrow seams and small tonnages of enriched material, are far too poor for modern mining and that there is no probability of developing there an industry of world importance. The same thing has been found with reference to other parts of China. Nevertheless, the iron problem of that vast country, accommodating about a fifth of the population of the world, is of universal interest and importance.

MANCHURIA'S DEPOSITS LARGEST

China contains the same general types of iron ores that are found elsewhere, in the United States for instance. In Chihli and Manihoria are the archean ores, similar to those of Lake Superior, but of low grade, and particularly comparable to the ores of western Ontario, the eastern Mesabi or some sections of the Marquette district of Michigan. These ores are largely magnetic, low in iron, and require concentration to be suitable for the modern furnace. Chihli also contains the uneroded remains of what once were enormous deposits of ore of a type similar to the Clinton beds of Alabama and of that part of New York State lying south of and near Lake Erie. The total measured quantities given in the report for Chihli are somewhat less than 100,000,000 tons, of which nearly half is of the archean type, assaying only about 30 percent iron. In the Clinton beds are considerable quantities of ore good enough to use without concentration, in fact considerably higher in iron than the American Clinton ores, which are the basis of the entire steel industry of the south.

Manchuria, the development of which is now in the hands of the Japanese through their South Manchurian Railway, contains probably more available ore than any other part of China. In Fengtien Province, Manchuria, investigations carried on during recent years have revealed resources of low grade archean magnetic ores of a magnitude comparable to similar regions in the United States. Also, other types of iron ore are found there, but none of them probably of commercial importance.

A JAPANESE ENTERPRISE

These Fengtien magnetics are already under exploitation. The Japanese have organized the Anshan steel works, and have blast furnaces and other works at Anshan, and a concentrator near Nanfen. They are planning extensive additions to both and have at Duluth, Minn., an engineering department where the technical work of their mines and concentrators is under way. The Anshan works are the most ambitious transpacific steel enterprise under way or in immediate contemplation. They are connected by rail with the seaports of Dairen, Port Arthur and Antung on the south, and with Peking and Tientsin on the southwest.

In the vast areas of lean ore in Fengtien there are innumerable zones of secondarily enriched ores, which natives have for centuries mined as the source of their requirements for iron. They still are digging in these narrow ore channels for the An-Shan works, and the furnaces are mainly supplied from such ores, prior to the operation of the great concentrator now under way.

This primitive mining is by hand, the selection of ore is by hand, and the initial transportation to near the furnaces is largely also by hand, and thousands of poverty stricken Chinamen are employed, under Japanese supervision, in getting out enough ore to supply the furnaces. The scale of wages is so low that it makes very little difference how many of these workmen are employed per ton.

LESS HARD LABOR NEEDED

With the introduction of concentration and modern mining and with the mining of the entire ore deposits, instead of little natural concentrations now worked, the number of men will be greatly reduced, although it is questionable if the cost of ore to the furnace is lessened at all. The advantage will be the permanence of supply and the assurance of uniformity of grades. The deposits near the present furnaces are estimated at about 400,000,000 tons, mostly of ore suitable for concentration into a high grade material.

In addition to these deposits that total not less than 270,000,000 tons of concentrating ore, and others of lesser quantities, in all a very large and rather favorably situated series of bodies, containing no less than 1,900,000,000 tons. This is by far the most important of all the Chinese iron ore reserves.

Before the World War the German Government secured rights in Shantung which enabled its subjects to develop mining properties along its railways. Works to cost some 10,000,000 marks were planned, to be in operation in 1916, but the entire enterprise was seized in 1914 by a Japanese expeditionary force, and since then, until 1923, they carried on development. Now the district is in the hands of the Chinese and Japanese combined.

Aside from the districts mentioned above, the iron resources of China, so far as are now known, are of no great importance, except for the trifling local use of the inhabitants and for smelting of their prehistoric forges.

OSTRICH PLUMES RETURN TO VOGUE ASSERTS DEALER

Prices Rising, And Shortage Of Birds On Farms May Force Them Further

New York, July 20.—In view of the present style interest in ostrich feathers as millinery and dress accessories, the present market situation presents some rather interesting aspects, according to Leo Eisemann, a partner in the firm of E. Eisemann and Co. From the style standpoint, he said yesterday, present conditions are doubly interesting, inasmuch as since 1913 there has been no really consistent demand. Now, however, the signs point to a market revival, with a probable scarcity of the most desirable feathers. This will tend to strengthen the position of the medium-grade feathers and also bring higher prices. At the recent feather auction held in London prices advanced from 10 to 20 percent.

"Perhaps the greatest single factor in the present situation is the reduction of the number of ostriches on the farms in the feather districts of Oodtshoorn and the Eastern Provinces of South Africa," said Mr. Eisemann. "Before the war there were approximately 1,500,000 ostriches on the farms in those districts. Today, according to reliable information, there are fewer than 200,000.

"Prior to the war, when the ostrich farmer received good prices for his products, he carefully fed and reared the birds. When prices declined, however, it no longer paid him to feed the birds with alfalfa, as the British Government paid a much better price for it as fodder for horses. The farmer, therefore, allowed his birds to roam the fields and shift for themselves, with the result that a great many perished and the product of those surviving was a very poor quality feather.

"I might add here that during the war and after the signing of the armistice there was a large amount of speculation in raw ostrich feathers, both in and outside of the trade. Feathers were bought at what were then considered low prices. The slump came, and for a long while these speculative holdings were held over the market like the sword of Damocles. They were released from time to time, however, and have now all been put on the market. The trade today is depending on the current production of the farmers.

"At present considerable significance attaches to the purchasing of ostrich merchandise by the Parisian milliners and couturiers. Paris is showing ostrich not only for millinery decorations, but great quantities are used for dress trimmings and boas from twenty-four inches to three yards in length. We look forward to a particularly big season in fans. These will run almost entirely to novelty effects.

"In dress accessories a large variety of ostrich trimmings is shown. These range from willow edgings in soft pastel colors to variegated tones in garnitures, rosettes and corsakes. Buyers have shown much interest in edgings. Ostrich collarettes for afternoon and evening wear will also be marked features. The ostrich boa has returned, but in the new and attractive form of the willowy collarette. For afternoon wear the colors of the collarettes are sombre tones and speckled effects, while for evening all of the bright shades prevail.

"In millinery the outlook is made auspicious by the change indicated in shapes for the coming season. The advance French models hats have a higher crown, with brims that turn up on one side and down on the other. This type of hat needs trimming, and ostrich is being utilised for this purpose.

"It may be of interest to cite a cable received a few days ago, as it is descriptive of the costumes and accessories worn at one of the leading French race events. It reads: 'Large hats are worn to a very great extent trimmed with long ostrich bands. Dresses are adorned with fancy ostrich feathers and coats are also trimmed largely with ostrich. Many ostrich collarettes are seen. Such a sudden change made a big sensation.'

"To go back a moment to the raw feather situation, my advices say that at present there is a severe drought in the Oodtshoorn district which promises further reduction of an already scant production.

"The manner in which the feathers are secured is interesting. The bird is driven into a pen and a hood is drawn over its head. Then, with a large pair of shears, the feathers are cut, twenty-seven long feathers being taken from each wing. The bird is then released.

"Two months elapse before the stalks drop out, but subsequently a new feather grows to maturity within eight months. The birds can thus be clipped three times in two years. The male feathers are whiter than the female and bring 30 percent higher prices. The black tipped feathers at the end of the wing of the male bird are called 'byocks' and are of less value than the whites. On the female bird the wing feathers are gray and white, the body feathers being gray.

"The farmers are making progress in the improvement of their birds by the in-breeding of the higher grade ones, which results in better feathers. The male ostrich is a good father, sitting on the eggs alternately with the female at regular intervals. When the young are hatched, both parents trot with their chicks until they are able to care for themselves. At that stage family ties are ruptured."

Boston University Gives Recognition To American School

A cablegram received yesterday by the Shanghai American School from Boston University announces the acceptance of Miss Ruth Estes of the latest graduating class as a college student upon the school's certificate without examination, thus adding another to the list of notable institutions granting this privilege to recommended graduates.

The last mail brought the statement that Pomona College in California of which Acting Principal Boynton, Harry Kingman, "Hudford" Taylor, and Dr. Fong F. Sec are alumni, has placed the Shanghai American School on its standard list, giving local students the same opportunity as the best schools in the United States.

In July Furman University, Greenville, South Carolina, joined the number of those admitting local graduates on certificate from the principal. Application is being made to all the sixty-five colleges and universities to which the students now enrolled look forward for their education, for similar privileges. Nearly thirty have already agreed to grant this.

Plan Bank Combine For Northern Japan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, August 19.—A combine of the local banks engaged in business in the northern part of Japan is being suggested by those who are prominent in business in that part of the country. The headquarters of such a bank, if established, would be in Tokio, while the existing banks throughout the districts would become branches of it. The promoters, who are aiming at a capital of twenty million yen, are to meet in Tokio in the autumn for further consultation on their scheme.

It is stated that Government looks with favor on the proposed combination as tending to centralise the development of the industry of northern Japan, and is ready to give the promoters every assistance and facility to achieve their end. Representatives of the Government are likely to participate in the coming discussions.

SILVER LOAN 1924.

ISSUE OF DEBENTURES FOR Tls. 1,250,000 AT Tls. 97½ PER CENT.

Rate of Interest 6 percent per annum.

Under the authority of Resolution V, passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 16, 1924, the Council hereby invites applications for debentures in the Silver Loan of 1924.

The debentures in this issue will bear interest from the date of purchase at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year.

The debentures will be issued at Tls. 97½ percent, and will be redeemed at par under the operation of a Sinking Fund on December 31, 1934, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on December 31, 1924, or on any subsequent date, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and the public press of Shanghai.

In the event of any partial redemption of the loan, the numbers of debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing.

The scrip will be issued in denominations of Tls. 5,000, Tls. 1,000, Tls. 500 and Tls. 100 to suit the convenience of applicants.

Application forms can be obtained from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, Administration Building, Hankow Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

By order,

J. M. McKEE,
Assistant Secretary.

Weather Reports

Aug. 21.—High pressures in Central China and over the Pacific Ocean. The typhoon crosses the Sea of Japan in a NNE direction. Another low centre is apparently approaching SE Luzon. Summer monsoon along the coast to the S of the Saddles. Unsteady breezes and local calms elsewhere. Fine but very hot and sultry day in our Valley and in the north.

Aug. 22.—The pressure is still rising, at Shanghai and in the north. Cloudy and damp but fine weather. Monsoon breezes of the SE quadrant.

Aug. 23.—Cloudy weather, with local mist and thundery showers in our Valley. Very unsteady winds all along the China coast. Rough weather to the West of the Visayas, and over Northern Nippon.

Stock Exchange Responsibility

THAT stocks and shares transactions loom large on the horizon of the business world, both in Shanghai and the neighboring Colony of Hongkong, is attested by the fact that a seat on the Stock Exchange in the two places necessitates the expenditure of a small fortune. The subject is suggested by those waves of over-speculation that periodically sweep people off their feet, as in the case of Langkat shares recently when, through the folly of one or two individuals, many innocent people suffered. It is, therefore, with not a little interest that we read the announcement from Hongkong the other day that, with the object of checking over-speculation, the Committee of the Hongkong Stock Exchange has decided to restrict forward dealings to those not exceeding three months ahead, the decision to become effective in November. In this connection, it is worth while to take note of the latest tendencies in the Stock Exchange world in London. A good deal has been said in the columns of the London Financial Times recently about the responsibilities of the Stock Exchange Committee, and the writers have been expressing criticism, if not censure, of that body. This has moved "An Old Broker" to put up a vigorous defence for the Stock Exchange Committee against the strictures that have recently been levelled at it. He writes temperately, and, from his point of view, very sanely. But it is precisely the point of view which we conceive to be the matter in dispute between the contending parties. The fundamental issue is whether the regulations are now sufficiently effective for the protection of the public against undesirable flotations, and if, as many responsible authorities think, they are not, why the Committee does not take steps to make them so.

This is an altogether different aspect of the subject from that raised by the correspondent we have quoted. Does he really believe, for instance, that the Committee should ever have passed the Anglo-Burma Oil application and that the subsequent history of that concern has not seriously reflected on the Stock Exchange? And if he cannot quite reconcile himself to incidents of this character, what would he be willing to do to put a stop to them? His whole argument so far implies that if the Committee goes through certain formalities, it has done all that can be expected of it and that no further responsibility can be reasonably imposed on it. In responsible financial circles in London, on the contrary, the opinion is entertained that the Committee is responsible for seeing that its rules really secure the end at which they nominally aim. If they are not efficient for their purpose, to retain them merely adds to the delusion of the public, for the very existence of such regulations naturally lead investors to suppose that they are designed to erect some barrier or other between themselves and worthless securities.

"The Committee cannot possibly attempt to examine the prospects of new companies," says "An Old Broker," "and it cannot be too widely known that 'permission to deal in shares conveys no 'imprimatur'—the word used in our London contemporary's columns—for the bona fides or good character of the new concern, and is not meant to do so." Then what does it mean? asks the paper we are quoting. It proceeds: We agree that the Committee cannot examine the prospects of new companies, any more than any Board can guarantee the future of a fresh enterprise, but the Committee can make sure, by thorough investigation, that the origins and antecedents of a flotation are of such a nature that it is one on which the Stock Exchange can properly put the seal of its approval. In this connection "An Old Broker" certainly makes a good and strong point when he suggests that brokers who sponsor an application to the committee should also accept far more responsibility than is now put on them for their share in helping to create a market for particular securities. The Committee might certainly be more exacting with brokers in this respect; but that is a domestic question, and since the ultimate decision is the Committee's it is the Committee the general investor must look to for redress or a proper explanation.

We confess we are unable to comprehend what the functions of the Stock Exchange are supposed to be in relation to the public if they stop short at the point where they are most needed. Here we have a highly organised corporation, which undoubtedly is quite powerful enough to do whatever it desires within the bounds of reason and equity, professing, according to "An Old Broker," not to be able to make its writ run precisely where it ought with the most cogency and with the most beneficial results. We are unwilling ourselves to accept that view of the position, and we doubt if the members of the House collectively do so either. If the attitude of the Stock Exchange is really that put forward by "An Old Broker," it ought to set it forth plainly in the few advertisements it permits itself, and every notice of permission to deal and every admission to the Official List should be heralded by the announcement that the authority of the House carries with it no suggestion whatever that the Committee makes any discrimination between a genuine and a worthless promotion. But that would be such an act of stultification that the Committee would not dare to perpetrate it. Yet unless the Committee radically revises its procedure that is what the investing public will eventually be forced to believe of it.

The Development Of The Shanghai American School

THE recent announcement that the enrolment in the Shanghai American School is expected to reach the 500 mark during the coming term demonstrates the phenomenal growth which has taken place in that institution in the last few years and also serves to emphasise the problem which faces the American community in Shanghai in respect to the education of American children. The School was opened on September 17, 1912, by a group of American missionaries and originally occupied rented quarters on North Szechuen Road, Shanghai. The enrolment the first year was only 38. Now through an almost super-human effort on the part of the American community in this city the School has been provided with a modern plant in the French Concession of Shanghai and the enrolment last year reached 412. Already the School, one year after moving into the new buildings, is over-crowded and it has become necessary to rent private residence property adjoining the School for dormitory purposes.

According to the prospectus for 1924-25, just issued, the School "was founded on the theory that an American child should have an American education if he is to be equipped for the highest usefulness as an American citizen; that it is his birthright to be educated in an American school by American teachers, amid American ideals and traditions." The courses in the School begin with the primary grades and carry the student through High School. Diplomas issued are accepted for entrance without examination by most of the leading universities and colleges of the United States.

From the standpoint of property equipment and faculty personnel, the Shanghai American School compares favorably with those in the home land. Up to the present, it has been supported entirely by the American community in Shanghai through fees paid by the parents of students. The money for the land and school plant was contributed by the business and missionary communities here and through their connections in the United States.

So much for the present: The future problem of the School is that of finance, due to its phenominal growth and the predicament of the American community in Shanghai in bearing the financial burden. The American community in Shanghai is not a corporate entity, and, like Topsy in the well-known play, has "just growed." American citizens residing in China pay income taxes to the Home Government just like the citizens in Kalamazoo and Centralia, but these taxes go to the support of the Home Government and institutions and not to the support of local American institutions is China. American business corporations operating in China are in exactly the same predicament, from the standpoint of taxation, as are the American individuals. America does send money to China, vast sums, for educational work but all of it goes toward the education of Chinese. The American share of the China Boxer Indemnity, which has just been remitted, likewise goes to the education of the youth of China, and not a cent toward the education of the children of American citizens residing in China.

In order to provide stability for American enterprise in the Far East, it is necessary to encourage American citizens to reside out here for a considerable period of years. To provide this stability, there must be schools to which Americans may send their children for educations at least up to the college grades. This, therefore, constitutes the problem: The American community in Shanghai as well as those in Peking, Tientsin and elsewhere have met this problem admirably up to the present, but there is a large question mark on the future due to the fact that the School attendance is rapidly outgrowing the financial strength of the communities. Numerous plans are under consideration for meeting this situation, the seriousness of which is obvious. That the problem of the future of these American schools in China is one that merits the serious study of the entire American communities, acting cooperatively, is apparent to all.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

HUMAN FLIES

Oh for a human fly-swatter! That is, for some sort of a swatter that would obliterate the human fly.

The most prominent trait of a fly is his ability and disposition to bother. He is essential, concentrated botheraciousness.

He is the arch intruder. He is the type of the unwelcome. His business is to make you quit what you are doing and attend to him.

He makes the busy cook cease her bread-making to shoo him away. He disturbs the sleeper to brush him off. He is president and chairman of the executive committee of the amalgmated association of all pesterers, irritators, and nuisances.

The human fly is the male or female of the genus homo who is like the housefly.

Some children are flies. They are so ill bred and undisciplined that they perpetually annoy their mother until her nerves are frazzled, and make life miserable for any guests that may be in the house. It may be well to be kind and thoughtful toward the little darlings, but the first lesson a child should be taught is to govern himself so as not to be a bother.

There are respectful, considerate, and unobtrusive children—alas, too few!

There are fly wives. Realizing their own pettiness, they gain their revenge by systematically irritating the husband. They make a weapon of their weakness. They soon acquire the art of pestering, nipping, and buzzing, keep the man in a perpetual temper, and blame him for it. You can't talk to them. Nothing can cure them but an elevenfoot swatter. And these are not for sale.

Some men are just as bad. Married to a superior woman, such a man is inwardly galled by his own conscious inferiority. He enjoys seeing her in a state of suppressed indignation. He keeps her on edge. His persecution is all the more unbearable because it is the unconscious expression of his fly nature. Also for him there is no cure but to wait till he lights some time and swat him with some giant, Gargantuan swatter. And they're all out of these, too, at the store.

There are office flies, likewise, who get into your room, occupy your extra chair, and buzz you for an hour upon some subject that you don't care a whoop in Halifax about. Your inherent politeness prevents you from kicking them out, humanity will not let you poison them, and there is a law against shooting them. There ought to be an open season for office flies.

Where the human flies are proudest in their function of pestiferousness, however, is in a meeting. Wherever you have a conference, a committee meeting, or a convention, there they buzz, tickle, and deblatterate. They keep the majority waiting while they air their incoherence. They suggest, amend, and raise objections. They never do anything; it is their business to annoy people who do things.

I do not wish to seem unkind to my fellow-creatures, but it does seem as if to all legislatures, conventions, and other gatherings there should be an anteroom where the human flies could be gently but efficaciously swatted.

There are Senate flies, as well as House flies, politicians whose notion of their duty appears to be that they should vex, tantalize, and heckle the opposing party at every point.

There are fly newspapers, whose only policy seems to be petty, vicious annoyance.

There are fly preachers, with a cheap efficiency in diatribe and sarcasm, and no wholesome, constructive message.

There are fly school-teachers, who hector and scold; fly pupils, who find and fasten upon the teacher's sensitive spot; fly beggars, who will not be put aside; fly reformers, who cannot mind their own business; fly shopkeepers, who will not let you buy what you want.

And the name of the devil himself is Beelzebub; which being interpreted, means "Lord of Flies."

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir: Your article on "Chinese and the Parks" in today's paper points out that "discrimination is always unfortunate." I think the word "unfortunate" ought to be written in all caps. However, is the situation capable of being remedied? My answer would be "Yes" for the following reasons:

1.—If the parks were open to a part of the Chinese residents in the Settlement it would not cause overcrowdedness. We are all aware that the parks in the Settlement are not so much used as those in other large cities in the world. On ordinary days, there are scarcely a few scores of people sauntering in the parks. Even in the evenings, when a musical program is given in the park, we find that the capacity of the park far exceeds the need of the attendants. The Public Garden is the only park in Shanghai that is frequently and popularly used by foreign residents. The Race Course is not used to any large extent unless occasionally there was a baseball game; otherwise, the whole Course is almost empty being more sparsely dotted with people than the stars in a bright moon shining night. The situation in the Hongkew Park is about the same as that in the Jessfield Park. Both are used quite sparingly by foreign residents. It does not mean in this case, however, that foreigners have not much use of the parks; but it proves that the capacity of the parks allows a partial extension of the privileges to the Chinese residents. The French parks are now open to a part of the Chinese. Several visits there have convinced me that the parks are not by any means overcrowded. I saw a few Chinese in the parks every time I went, but the number was very limited and all foreigners, adults as well as children, enjoy just as much as when the parks were not open to the Chinese.

2.—The purposes of the parks are in the main for fresh air and recreation. People of the better class are mostly occupied in work or other undertakings in the day time. It is a question whether we can find a few who would spend their whole time in any of the parks. The average percentage of the people using the parks at a certain time is therefore necessarily low. Unless there should be a great attraction in the parks, people would not go to the parks all at the same time. Some would go probably in the morning, some at noon, and some in the evening, and even if they go there, it is not likely that they would stay there for many hours. Attractions in Shanghai are plenty. Many spend their evenings by going to theaters, dancing houses, open air cinemas, and various other places of entertainment. As a rule, it is only a small portion of the people who go to the parks. They go for a change and fresh air. Therefore, if the parks should be open to a part of the Chinese community, it is not likely that there would be overcrowdedness.

There may be various reasons for the existence of the present parks; some may be donations, some concessions, and some purchases. No matter how they came into existence, they are given to and maintained by, the public just the same. They are foreign parks, it is true, and the city, a foreign settlement; but no one, I believe, would say that the Chinese should for these reasons be prohibited from entering the parks. If it should be said that because the parks were started with foreign capital and intended for use of foreigners, so they should not admit the Chinese, then we should close all our parks in Chinese cities such as Hangchow, Soochow, Wusih, and Peking, to foreigners because the parks in these cities were started with Chinese capital and intended for the Chinese.

The park privilege is a civil right of any respectable citizen in any city, and by international courtesy, foreigners should have the privilege of going into Chinese parks just as much as the Chinese going into foreign parks. If, for instance, we should start a campaign to close all Chinese parks to foreigners, our foreign friends would at once cry loudly that the Chinese are starting an anti-foreign propaganda. Some will even claim that this action is against the treaties between China and the "most-favored nations;" but if we allow the Unfortunate situation to remain in this Settlement or any Settlement in China, can we say that foreigners are anti-Chinese and they are violating the treaties because of selfishness? I firmly believe therefore that not even the unintelligent would say that the Chinese should have no privilege to enter foreign parks.

The present problem is whether it is practicable to admit the Chinese into foreign parks, because of the limited capacity of the parks, which is not commensurate with the large population of Chinese living in the Settlement. I do not believe that the Shanghai Municipal Council is antagonistic to the idea of admitting a part of the Chinese residents to the parks. The problem therefore can be easily solved by devising an appropriate method to limit the privilege, not as an anti-Chinese measure, but for the limited space of those parks, to a part of the Chinese population. It is not impossible to arrive at such a solution. Whether it is the best way or not, the French Municipal Council has already shown us one way. The regulations have been carried out apparently with success, and the feeling of the Chinese residents towards the French Municipal Council has naturally been improved on account of its voluntary opening of the parks to our people.

The International Settlement can undoubtedly with its able council and advisors solve this problem in the most practical and satisfactory manner. The park regulations have certainly caused much indignation of our people and if the problem could be satisfactorily settled, it would be a real piece of good work done for the promotion of friendship between Chinese and foreign residents.

The Shanghai Municipal Council now under the direction of Mr. Stirling Fessenden, one of the most capable men in Shanghai, with the cooperation of Chinese advisors will undoubtedly be able to devise a more reasonable and satisfactory way than what has been done in the French Concession to accord to a part of the Chinese population the privilege of admission into Shanghai parks.

Yours truly,

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper

is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Astronomy By Diagram

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Please show by diagram or tell how to construct diagram to show the sun perpendicular on the equator and at an angle of 45 degrees at latitudes 45 degrees north and south, that being the position of the sun at the equinoxes, September 21 and March 21. Also, please show by diagram how the pole star, which is seen at an angle of 45 degrees at 45 degrees north latitude, can be seen at, or even a few degrees below, the equator. I fail to be able to construct such a diagram. —T. W., New York."

You should spur your imagination a little, while keeping it under a stiff rein. It will enable you to make quite easily a single diagram to serve both of the purposes that you mention. Here is such a diagram, and I advise you first to study it carefully, and then see if you can make a similar one without looking at the original. If you can you will have mastered the principles involved, and after that you will be able to introduce very instructive and interesting variations in the drawing which, without any book, will teach you a great deal about the relations of the earth to the sun.

Note that in the diagram shown the central dot represents the earth, while the circle is a section of the celestial sphere parallel to the earth's axis. The earth is so minute in comparison with the distance of the stars and the sun that, without appreciable error, we may treat it, for our present purpose, as a mere point.

ASTRONOMY BY DIAGRAM

The line N-S represents the earth's axis imagined as extending on both sides to the celestial sphere. N stands for the North Pole and S for the South Pole, both projected on the concave of the heavens. The line E-E, at right angles to the polar axis, shows the equator in like manner extended, in both directions, to the celestial sphere.

Now, imagine an observer placed in latitude 45 degrees north on the earth, which is just half way between the equator and the North Pole. Then Z will represent the position of his zenith, or point exactly overhead. And, since the horizon is always at right angles to the direction of the zenith, our observer's horizon will be represented by the line H-H.

Suppose the sun to be in the celestial sphere exactly in the plane of the equator, in the direction indicated by the arrow. To the observer, whose zenith is Z, the elevation of the sun above the horizon H-H will plainly be 45 degrees, as marked in the diagram. So, while an observer on the equator would see the sun overhead at noon, the other observer at the same moment sees it making an angle of 45 degrees with the horizon.

Next consider an observer situated in latitude 45 degrees south, but on the same meridian circle with the northern observer. Evidently his zenith will correspond with the H at the lower, left-hand end of the line representing the northern observer's horizon, while his own horizon will be represented by the line Z-Z, which is the vertical of the other observer; then the zenith of the northern observer lies on the horizon of the southern observer, and vice versa. But inspection shows at a glance that the sun, lying in the equatorial plane, in the direction of the arrow, is 45 degrees above the southern observer's horizon, just as it is the same number of degrees above the other observer's horizon.

But suppose the southern observer to be not on the same meridian with the northern one, but on exactly the opposite meridian, 180 degrees away, then, as you can see, his zenith would be at Z, and his horizon would lie in the same plane, H-H, as that of the northern observer, but viewed from the opposite side the angular elevation of the sun would still be for him 45 degrees.

For your second question, place the observer anywhere on the equator, and the polar axis, or line N-S, becomes the line of his horizon. Consequently both north and south poles lie on his horizon at diametrically opposite points If he moves either north or south, one or the other pole sinks below his horizon. But the North Star, being situated more than a degree from the true pole, may at certain times in its revolution be seen from a point slightly below the equator. Atmospheric refraction also tends to lift it above the horizon.

Is the Enormous Buster Brown Collar Coming Back With Fashion?

When the comic artist Bob Outcault originated the amusing and impossibly mischievous little boy that he called Buster Brown and dressed him in a suit—then worn by almost every little boy in the land—consisting of a pair of breeches, a belted over-blouse, a wide white collar of the Eton sort with a black bow tie under his chin, he little thought that he was naming a detail of fashion that would continue to be called by that name for decades—not only in this country but abroad. Thousands of people have called this collar by that name without having the vaguest idea that it had its origin in a popular Sunday comic strip.

Next to the Peter Pan collar, made famous by James Barrie and Maud Adams, no collar of American origin and few fashions of any sort, has gained such wide popularity abroad as this named Buster Brown.

In the days when Buster was a real live comic feature, all little boys used to wear enormous ties like that, and young girls used sometimes to cover up almost the entire front of their blouses by enormous tied bows "a la Buster Brown."

One of the most amusing styles that ever was devised to make pictures of one generation of school girls look ridiculus in the eyes of another was the trick of wearing these Buster Brown ties of such extreme size that they well-nigh covered the entire front of a girl's blouse, serving the while as an anchorage for numerous class pin, faternity pins and other insignia of youthfolk distinctions. Mothers and older sisters wondered where it would lead to. Week by week these enormous bows grew more enormous. They dreaded the time when the entire front of little daughter or younger sister would be plastered with one enormous bow tie. Then almost over night Buster Brown ties disappeared entirely. In their place girls wore lingerie blouses buttoned in the back with the high collars edged with ruching.

You can see it all quite plainly and amusingly in any file of old college or school year books. This year's class all wore the Buster Brown bow. Next year they have disappeared—never to return again.

Never? Well, never is a long word and not a very safe one to use in speaking of any fashion. Quite recently one of the most influential of French dressmakers has launched a frock that shows a bow tie under the chin that strongly reminds one of those old-time Buster Brown ties. And here is a frock, made in America, of brick-colored crepe finished with a white Buster Brown collar and a black Buster Brown tie.

Beige kasha frock with Buster Brown collar and bow of brown satin ribbon.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

ARE YOU GUILTY—?

There are girls here and there—bobbed-haired girls—who wear little folding combs around their necks on ribbons in lieu of other necklaces. Then from time to time, as the occasion requires, they comb their locks.

Really it isn't a pretty trick at all. And just because these little combs in fancy cases are sold is no reason why you should think that it is smart to comb you hair with one worn round your neck.

Some girls are so used to wearing light flesh-colored stockings that "they don't feel right" if they wear any other sort. So they wear them on rainy days as well as fair days, on muddy pavements as well as along spotless ways. But truth to tell there is nothing smart nor fashionable about light stockings that have become mud spotted. There are plenty of the darker shades of the fashionable browns and grays that are far more appropriate for rainy days and really look much smarter.

It used to be a rule of good form that the well-bred man or woman did not touch his hair "in polite society." When you read in a novel that the hero "combed his fingers through his hair" in a rage or passion, you somehow felt that he wasn't quite a thoroughbred. Because the thoroughbred didn't touch his hair.

But this old rule of good form must have been forgotten by many a young woman, or perhaps the temptation to stroke and fondle and pat a new bob is too great. At any rate there are always women about you who seem to delight in fingering their bobbed hair. They seem to want to feel to see whether it is still there, just as a child keeps inspecting a new toy to be sure that the possession of it is not just a dream.

Chinese Call On Soviet Envoy Here

Representatives of the Association for the Abolition of Unjust Treaties paid an official call on Mr. R. J. Elleder, Soviet representative here, on Thursday for the purpose of congratulating him on the conclusion of the Sino-Russian agreement.

Mr. Elleder, in responding, asserted that the Soviet Government had rescued its property from the hands of the "Whites" and that its purpose was to oppose imperialism and to fight for equality with other peoples.

Asiatic Association Here Suggests Adoption Of A Common Tongue For Asia

The formation of an Asiatic League for the promotion of universal peace and the adoption of a common Asiatic Language are advocated in a manifesto which has just been issued by Dr. Y. Tongu and Mr. H. P. Shastri president and vice-president respectively of the newly organised Asiatic Association.

The text of the manifesto, which is addressed to the People of Asia, follows:

"Since the conclusion of the Great War the world has been in a state of chaos. The moral material and spiritual conditions of the world are in confusion. The War has opened our eyes to the truth that the European civilisation with all its scientific achievements and industrial developments, great literary productions and pain-alleviating inventions lacks in the spiritual back-bone, the absence of which has turned the mind of Europe toward destruction and exploitation. Europe does not realise the want of this life-giving force and consequently the same spirit of greed, double-dealing, thirst after the sensual enjoyments only, disregard to the progress of others, absence of national morality predominate the bosom of Europe with the result that another catastrophe much more appalling than the previous one is within sight.

"The sorrows of Europe are our sorrows. Humanity is one complete whole and as long as a single nation suffers other can not be happy. It is therefore our duty to shake off our sleep of centuries and work for our unification and revival of our spiritual heritage. It is for us to supply what Europe needs today as our ancestors did in the past. But how can we pretend to save others when we ourselves are sunk in illiteracy, lethargy and orthodoxy. Unless we get up and unite ourselves, giving up our petty differences of religion and national prejudices we can not discharge the mission to humanity. Our ancestors like Shakyamuni Buddha, Moses, Zarthustra, Imam Chazali, Confucius and Kobo worked for humanity and gave life-giving Ideals to the world. Their idealism has kept humanity alive till today. Now when the world has taken a downward turn and forgotten the idealism of our seers it is for us to practice their idealism and impart it to those who so badly need it.

"Let us then be true Asiatics, proud of our spiritual culture and revive our ancient wisdom. To do so we must start founding Asiatic Associations in every town of Asia from Jerusalem to Hakodate. These associations should be centers of our culture and activities.

"One of our great and most important duties today is to outlaw war and promote universal peace by every means in our power and making every sacrifice for the cause. We must not sell war materials to be used for war purposes nor should we supply recruits for the Legalised Murder, called War. We must see that our oil-fields, coal and iron mines remain in our own hands to be used for national advantages and not war.

"Our another crying need is Education on our own lines. We must take all that is useful in the European culture and combined it with our spiritual culture as is being done by our Rabindranath Tagore and Mahatama Gandhi in India. It is useless for us to wait till European missionaries come and open schools for us. Every Asiatic who can read and write must teach others. We should ask Japan, our enlightened brother and our Jewish brothers to send educational missions to the other Asiatic counties.

"Let us take Asia as one country and consider each Asiatic country a province of Asia. We must first be Asiatics and then, Chinese, Japanese, Indians, or Turks. In this connection we would suggest that Japanese and Urdu be adopted as the common Asiatic languages. Urdu is already understood in India, Persia, Central Asia, and Japanese can be easily picked up by the Chinese, the Koreans and the Mongols.

"To be true Asiatics we must remove the ban of inferiority placed on our mothers and sisters. How can we progress spiritually so long we consider our Motherhood inferior to us?

"Let us demonstrate our faith in the immortality of the Soul, the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man, and fill our hearts with love for all living beings."

Japan Will Spend Millions Of Yen On Aerial Routes

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, August 19.—A plan to spend twenty-one million yen during the next five years on aerial routes within the Empire has been formulated by the Aviation Bureau attached to the Department of Communications.

Two routes are at present proposed, one between Tokio and Mukden, via Hakone, Osaka, Okayama, Hamada, Taiko, and Heijo, and the other between Etorofu in the Kurile Islands and Kagoshima, via Kasumigaura and Kshimoto. During the first year it is proposed to open the route between Tokio and Hamada, calling for an initial expenditure of six million yen, which will be used for maintenance, observatories, aviation grounds, and bounties to manufacturers and air-transport companies.
